nodded. Veil, with her gentle voice and smile, was implacable. She told Medra that though she had. It was hard to be aware of her through the wizard's talk and the constant, half-conscious controlling spells that wove a darkness round him. But when Otter could do so, then it was not so much as if she was with him, as that she was him, or that he was her. He saw through her eyes. Her voice spoke in his mind, stronger and clearer than Gelluk's voice and spells. Through her eyes and mind he could see, and think. And he began to see that the wizard, completely certain of possessing him body and soul, was careless of the spells that bound Otter to his will. A bond is a connection. He or Anieb within him could follow the links of Gelluk's spells back into Gelluk's own mind. Medra knew the danger of repeatedly taking any form but his own, but he was shaken and weakened by the shipwreck and the long night flight, and the grey beach led him only to the feet of sheer cliffs he could not climb. He made the spell and said the word once more, and as a sea tern flew up on quick, laboring wings to the top of the cliffs. Then, possessed by flight, he flew on over a shadowy sunrise land. Far ahead, bright in the first sunlight, he saw the curve of a high green hill. His dreams of her were never of her yielding to him, but of himself yielding to a fierce. "Rast?" I repeated helplessly. I did not understand. He could not say the other name, but he could think of the trees; of the roots of the trees. This. All the thoughts he had not been able to think for days and weeks were racing through his head, and he told Birch that he had received a sending from his teacher on Roke, the Master Hand, and must. "Of course I'll bring my band," Tarry said, "fat chance I'd miss it! You'll have every tooter in. above its eyes and below its ears. When he did so, it flicked its long right ear. So when he. we need to know." The Doorkeeper's tone was equally sober, and his smile was gone. "I think this. By the beginning of autumn, Losen was hanging by a rope round his feet from a window of the New Palace, rotting, while six warlords quarreled over his kingdom, and the ships of the great fleet chased and fought one another across the Straits and the wizard-troubled sea. farms and wineries and cooperage and cartage and all, while he enjoyed his wealth. BUT OF COURSE he went down to Havnor South Port, in one of his father's carts driven by one of his father's carters, along with Master Hemlock. As a rule, people do what wizards advise them to do. And it is no small honor to be invited by a wizard to be his student or apprentice. Hemlock, who had won his staff on Roke, was used to having boys come to him begging to be tested and, if they had the gift for it, taught. He was a little curious about this boy whose cheerful good manners hid some reluctance or self-doubt. It was the father's idea, not the boy's, that he was gifted. That was unusual, though perhaps not so unusual among the wealthy as among common folk. At any rate he came with a very good prenticing fee paid beforehand in gold and ivory. If he had the makings of a wizard Hemlock would train him, and if he had, as Hemlock suspected, a mere childish flair, then he'd be sent home with what remained of his fee. Hemlock was an honest, upright, humorless, scholarly wizard with little interest in feelings or ideas. His gift was for names. "The art begins and ends in naming," he said, which indeed is true, although there may be a good deal between the beginning and the end. announcement about takeoff, signals of some sort, the warning to fasten seat belts, but nothing. often have brown or even blond hair and light eyes; the men are often bearded.
